The Young Patriot: Bhagat Singh

"Inquilab Zindabad!" (Long Live the Revolution!)
— Shaheed Bhagat Singh

📖 Short Story: Planting Guns in the Soil

When Bhagat Singh was just a little boy in Banga village, his father took him to their farm. While his father was planting wheat seeds, little Bhagat began digging tiny holes in the dirt.

His father asked with a smile, "Son, what are you planting?" Young Bhagat looked up with shining eyes and answered, "I am planting guns in the soil so we can grow a crop of weapons to free India!" Even as a child, his dream was to make his motherland free.

As he grew older, Bhagat Singh became a voracious reader who spent hours in libraries learning about world history and freedom movements. With his brave friends like Sukhdev and Rajguru, he inspired millions of young Indians with his courage, smile, and the immortal slogan "Inquilab Zindabad!"
